

“If you want to save the world, you must save West Papua,”

Benny Wenda, Interim President of the ULMWP Provisional Government, speaking at the launch of West Papua's Green State Vision, last Thursday.

'The Green State Vision is our offer to the world. We have the just solution to the global climate crisis. My people have been looking after New Guinea's green land for tens of thousands of years. Our rainforest are the lungs of the world, and we are its best guardians. The Indonesian government and multinational corporations are destroying our forest and killing our people.' -

On the 4th of November, the West Papuan independence movement announced their plan for a 'green state': a clear vision for what a free West Papua will look like, where ecocide is a crime and indigenous people have guardianship of natural resources.

We need your help to deliver this world leading vision to parliamentarians, diplomats and decision makers, the world over.

Thanks to the significant support of one very generous donor, every donation you make between now and 1st December will be doubled, making your contribution twice as effective.

Our target of £5,000 will cover the lobbying and campaign costs that will help make this vision a reality.

Act now to show your support for the West Papuan Independence Movement and their Green State Vision for a more equitable and sustainable world.
